PREFACE

University is a seat of learning where students are prepared for practical life. It is the responsibility of all concerned to nurture qualities of scholarship, leadership, academic excellence, good manners and a deep sense of culture among the students through various sports and co-curricular activities. The university encourages students to form societies, clubs, and forums for holding seminars, lectures, sports activities, and campaigns for positive purposes in order to inculcate healthy social and cultural sense among their community.

In its original ethos, the International Islamic University Islamabad upholds that a wholesome educational process is marked by formal and informal means of education. The university is unique as students not only from all parts of Pakistan but also international students make up the tapestry of its campus life. It is also unique for its Islamic character and values.

It takes centuries to evolve and build great institutions. The responsibility lies on the present generation to shape beautiful traditions so that the subsequent generations may remember them and carry forward the light of knowledge and values. Great societies and institutions make rules and regulations for the collective good, above partisan lines, sectarian and political affiliations. The following code of conduct for the students (including registered clubs, societies, and forums) is promulgated to maintain discipline and inculcate sense of national purpose, good manners, and social conduct.

Upon the directions of the worthy President, International Islamic University Islamabad, this user's look-up hard book is being presented for the consumption of all concerned. Besides other important matters; this handbook will greatly help the students to make good use of activity planners in form of preparation and work flow guidelines. Activities conducted by the directorate as well as local and international students will be more planned and without last minute hurdle. Students by following these SOPs will learn as how to plan and work systematically.
